Penn. Prevents Defeat by Last Minute Rally

Quakers' Thrilling Offensive Snatches Victory From Dartmouth and Ties Game 14 to 14—Aerial Attack Makes Contest Spectacular.

A fighting Penn eleven turned back defeat at the Polo Grounds yesterday by a thrilling rally in the last few minutes of play. With Dartmouth leading, 14 to 7, and with the thousands of Penn supporters in despair in the face of gathering darkness, the Red and Blue warriors launched an offensive that swept aside the resistance of the Hanoverians and that carried the ball nearly half the length of the field for the tying touchdown and goal. And thus a spectacular contest that the hosts of Dartmouth already had accepted as a glorious victory for the Green ended in a 14 to 14 tie.

The stirring finish was doubly sweet to the Penn cohorts because of an unusual incident that came just before the successful march of the Red and Blue. After Pos Miller had intercepted a pass on Dartmouth's 40 yard line time out was called and the players, gathered in two groups near the side lines, gave the assembled throng the impression that the game was over. From the Dartmouth stands came a mighty shout, ringing with the joy of victory. There was a general rush to the stands to the field and headed by the Dartmouth band the rosters of the Green were about to give further vent to their enthusiasm. On the Penn side there was general silence and disappointment was keen, very keen.

In the midst of the excitement the officials indicated by frantic waving of the arms that the game was not over and the teams walked out to the center of the 40 yard line to line up for the next scrimmage. The special policemen had a hard time getting several hundred spectators to the grand stand and more time was taken out before play was resumed. The fourth period because of frequent injuries already had lasted a surprisingly long time and did not end until 10:30. It developed, however, that there were more than three minutes available and the Penn team went at its last ditch effort, a situation that showed in its every action.

Trick Play Helps.

A double pass, with Pos Miller carrying the ball, caught the Hanoverians off guard and was used down for Penn on the 30 yard line. Then, after Tex Hamer had hit center for five yards, Rex Wray, star of the Red and Blue, and Pos Miller executed a double pass. This time, however, it proved to be a trick. Miller darted off toward the left side of the field, crouching low and giving the impression that he had the ball tucked under his arm. The Dartmouth defense fell for it. In the meantime Wray, concealing the ball behind his back as he ran, sprinted toward the right and his legs could be seen. Before he was finally forced out of bounds he had covered twenty yards, and the ball was on Dartmouth's 50 yard line.

For the first time more yard to go. In the next rush Dartmouth was guilty of holding and was penalized two and a half yards—half the distance to the goal. Another assault at the line and Pos Miller made just one more yard to go. On the next rush Dartmouth was guilty of holding and was penalized two and a half yards—half the distance to the goal. Another assault at the line and Pos Miller made just one more yard to go.

Spectacular Aerial Attack.

It was Penn that contributed most of the spectacular elements in the game. The first time the Quakers showed their offensive was in the third period, when they carried the ball 100 yards in a single drive. The attack was launched by a forward pass and its ability to carry more than half of them through successfully had the ball zigzagging up and down the field and had the crowd on its feet. Miller's Great Run.

It was in the game period that Penn retaliated, Pos Miller racing sixty yards after receiving a forward pass from Wray. How Miller managed to get past as many opponents as he did in his point for a touchdown was hard to understand. When he received the ball he was practically surrounded by Dartmouth men, but he broke clear of his would be tacklers, slipping out of one

Game 23 to 21—Ground Rule Deprives Middle Westerners of Four Points.

A sound of green clad warriors came out of the West to do battle with Buck O'Neill's Blue and White eleven on South Field yesterday afternoon. Hopeful of victory, but little more. Their coach, Russell Winterwald, was an old pupil of O'Neill's and it looked as if he would learn more of the noble game of football ere the heavily overcast skies had turned from gray to black. But when they had departed from the field of battle, after one of the most exciting contests ever staged on Morning-Avenue Heights, they took with them a hard earned victory, and Columbia had sustained still another humiliating defeat. The final score was Ohio University 23, Columbia 21.

Two smashes reduced the distance to two mere yards and the period ended. Score: Ohio, 7; Columbia, 0.

Second Period.—Littler went over Columbia's line on the first play and kicked his own goal. Columbia then rallied, marched down to Ohio's 17 yard line and kicked off. It was a Green back fumble the ball just long enough for Forsyth to fall on the leather for Columbia. Three line plays were unavailing, but on the fourth down Burt completely scored during the half and the teams hurried a short pass to Koppich, who never halted till he had planted the leather behind the enemy goal posts. Burt tied the score when he kicked the goal.

But the Blue and White was not yet satisfied. Columbia kicked off and after Ohio found it impossible to gain Loomis pointed poorly to Koppich, who received the ball on his 49 yard line and dashed over Ohio's line for Columbia's third touchdown of the period, from which Burt kicked goal. There was no further scoring during the half and the teams left the field with the tally reading Columbia 21, Ohio 14.

Third Period.—Ohio counted once during this quarter. Following an exchange of punts, Ohio found itself in possession of the ball on her 33 yard line. Two line plays failed to gain, but on the third down Duval sped through an opening between guard and tackle and was only downed from behind by Koppich after a forty-eight yard run. A long lateral pass, Fisher to Littler, scored the touchdown, and Littler kicked the goal. Score: Ohio, 21; Columbia, 21.

Fourth Period.—After half the period had been played Koppich attempted to punt from his 10 yard line, but Wade caught the ball and ran it back to Fisher's goal posts, but because of a ground rule a safety only was awarded to the visitors, these two points being enough to win the game. The game was played on a very muddy field and the players were very tired.

Columbia Lacks Grip.

Ohio displayed little or nothing that should have given rise to fears in Columbia hearts. As has been the usual case with the Blue and White, the middle Westerners had counted when Columbia seemed well on the road to a victory.

Phillips-Exeter Leads.

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 12.—Cheek of Phillips-Exeter ran 70 yards for a touchdown on the first play in the annual game with Phillips-Exeter here today, starting a series of scores which gave the home academy an easy victory, 34 to 0.

COLGATE BOWS TO SYRACUSE, 14 TO 0

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 12.—For the fourth consecutive time Syracuse downed Colgate here this afternoon, 14 to 0, in a game played on a gridiron that was a sea of mud, with the ball as slippery as an eel, with the players covered with a combination of clay, mud and snow, and with a snow falling steadily throughout the hour of play.

Conditions could scarcely have been worse than they were this afternoon when the rivals clashed in their twenty-second gridiron contest, a battle which resulted in the eighth victory for the Orange. In the past Colgate has been returned victorious twelve times, while two games have been ties.

Despite the terrible weather conditions more than 12,000 braved the elements to see the up-State game, which is one of the woods takes the place of a Haystack-Yale or Army-Navy contest.

First Period.—Colgate's first play was a punt. The ball was caught by Fisher and he ran it back to Wade's goal posts, but because of a ground rule a safety only was awarded to the visitors, these two points being enough to win the game.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 12.—A gridiron ankle deep with mud and water failed to turn aside Ohio State's drive for Western Conference honors here today, the Buckeyes ploughing Purdue for four touchdowns and a 28 to 0 victory. Due to rain and the muddy conditions, the game was played in a sea of mud, making it difficult for players to handle the slippery ball, causing many forward passes to be fumbled.

CORNELL WARRIORS BLANK SPRINGFIELD

Score Is 14 to 0 on a Gridiron Covered With Snow and Mud.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 12.—In the midst of a blinding snow storm that at times reached the proportions of a blizzard, Cornell defeated Springfield College in the final game of the home schedule today by a score of 14 to 0, scoring one touchdown after three minutes of play and the second within four minutes of the final whistle. The gridiron was a morass of snow and mud over which the players of both teams slipped, slipped and sometimes managed to run.

First Period.—Cornell's first play was a punt. The ball was caught by Fisher and he ran it back to Wade's goal posts, but because of a ground rule a safety only was awarded to the visitors, these two points being enough to win the game.
